He Finally Had To Back His Automobile From Drifts

Yesterday afternoon at 3 p.m. rather an unusual episode occurred in the avenue leading to McGill University.

A huge automobile was seen to be buried in a snowbank and an army of snow shovellers were busily engaged in attempting to extricate it from its uncomfortable position.

As is usual in most cases that take place in the vicinity of McGill, a Daily man was present.

One might have imagined that it was a broad daylight elopement, or, perhaps, some fair ones going, as a huge bouquet of flowers was occupying a prominent position therein, but on closer observation the only inmate was a fox terrier dog, and he seemed to enjoy the proceedings immensely.

if the wagging of his tail and his barkings could be taken as signs.

Very soon a large crowd of students gathered round the scene and the remarks that were passed were as humorous as the unusual sight could suggest. Even the cabbies who have to pass their monotonous days looking for some new sight had some fun at the expense of the chauffeur, whose red face spoke volumes, though his lips uttered not a sound.

After making vain attempts to break down the mass of opposing snow the chauffeur thought that discretion was better than valor and he began to back his car, with evidently better results.

He eventually managed by so doing to get clear. But he had to return by the same way by which he came and if looks tell anything they certainly said that our friend would not return until conditions were more favorable.

DON. MAGUIRE NEW PREMIER

Named by Conservatives Yesterday.

McCONNELL WHIP

There Was a Large Attendance at Rally in Strathcona Hall.

At a big meeting of the Conservative party at Strathcona Hall, yesterday afternoon, Donald MacGuire was elected head of the Conservative party, and therefore leader of the government in the forthcoming Mock Parliament.

There were about sixty present at the meeting. Norman Johnson, president of the Arts Undergraduate Society, took the chair, and called for nominations for Conservative leader. There was only one nomination made, and the election of Donald MacGuire, president of the Lit., was unanimous.

The important matter of the election of a chief whip was next brought up. Various nominations were made, but by the special desire of all the others nominated, Billy McConnell was named to this responsible office. One of the nominees, Farthing, said he did not think a better choice could have been made.

"I will put my shoulder to the wheel," said McConnell in his short speech of thanks, "and I look to all the fellows to help me."

"There was a mock parliament when I was at McGill, too," remarked George Drummond, of McGill football fame, in his speech of congratulation to the University party. "They made me member for Argenteuil, though I don't know why." He promised the support of the down town Conservative Association, on St. Francis Xavier Street, and he added that two or three speakers of reputation would be tried to be secured. He laid emphasis on the importance of the University Conservative Club, and said he thought it would be possible to have a prominent speaker down from Ottawa to address it.

"With MacGuire as leader, and the nucleus the Conservatives have here of a cabinet, they stand a good chance of being elected to power," said John McNaughton, last year's president of the Students' Council. He claimed the Liberals were as yet very badly organized.

There was much approval shown of MacNaughton's suggestion that an attempt be made to draw a large audience from the City of Montreal to the Mock Parliament meetings. He said 400 or 500 people should be seen at the sessions, as he was sure the citizens at large were very much interested.

Mr. Walsh, last year's Conservative leader, was next called upon. He told how pleased he was to be back at a McGill meeting. "When I read in the Daily that there was to be a Conservative rally, I came up, as a matter of course."

Mr. Elliot of Law '16 made a short speech in which he told of the Conservative club consisting of members from McGill, Laval and L'Ecole Polytechnique. He invited anyone who wanted to come to some of their meetings. The meeting then adjourned. Mr. MacGuire announced that the cabinet would be made public in a few days.

DR. GEISEL ADVOCATES SIMPLE DIET.

Dr. Carolyn Geisel, member of the faculty of the Shorter College for Girls at Rome, Ga., said she went through the Michigan Medical College on a diet of chocolate creams and coffee, in speaking at the Race Betterment Conference at Battle Creek, Friday. Dr. Geisel's ambition is to establish a chair of health and household economies for every college in the United States and to have these institutions restrict girls as to diet and dress. The meeting then adjourned. Mr. MacGuire announced that the cabinet would be made public in a few days.

ON VIEW AT THE LIBRARY

Some of Dr. Tait MacKenzie's Athletic Groups Have been Loaned For Two Days.

Yesterday there was placed on exhibition in the Radpath Library, that the undergraduates might examine them, a few of the chief pieces of Dr. Tait MacKenzie's famous athletic sculpture work. The most interesting is the biggest of the collection, known as "The Onslaught." It shows a triple buck in operation, and is probably the most wonderful of its kind in existence, and will open the eyes of those who have called such reproduction lifeless.

STRATHCONA HALL DANCE

Popular and Informal Affair.

AT THE UNION

"A Paul Jones" Dance on the Programme.

There is no doubt that the Strathcona Hall dance will this year be as good and even better than the success of last year. The committee, who have been working hard during the last week, are now able to report that most of the arrangements have been completed, to their entire satisfaction. The dance, which is to take place on the twenty-third (one week from to-day), will be held in the Union.

In previous years it has always been the custom for this dance to be the one truly informal dance of the season. This year it has been decided not to make any change. Accordingly, the dance will be informal. By informal it is meant that dress suits will not be worn by the men present.

The supper, which is so important a part of a dance, has been excellently provided for. The catering will be done by Bronsdons. It has been decided to decorate the dining room. The tables will be lighted with candles.

The most important innovation, however, is in the matter of the programme. In order to start things with a swing, one of the first dances will be a Paul Jones. As there may be some who have never been initiated into the mysteries of that dance, we will explain that it is something like this: Everybody dances a waltz. Suddenly the music stops, and then the orchestra strikes up a march and everybody does the grand chain. This is followed by a waltz again, and then a grand chain, and so on to the end of the number. This dance is without doubt one of the merriest ever.

The music will be excellently provided for. The committee are sorry

HOCKEY CLUB EXPENDITURE

Estimate Shows Encouraging Decrease.

CAMPUS RINK

More or Less Important Business at Council Meeting Last Night.

Chief in importance among the various items of business that came up before the Students' Council last night was the Hockey Club estimate. Under disbursements, $300 is allowed for the Arena, $500 odd for travelling expenses, and $250 for equipment. Besides this, necessary items, such as referees' expenses, trainer, delegates' expenses, etc., amount to over $200. Total disbursements amount to $1,345. Estimated receipts from the Varsity and Queen's games are $600. The probable deficit in this estimate amounts to $745. This is an agreeable contrast to the enormous deficit of $1,069 last year. Upon the motion of Jack Hall the estimate was passed.

The Campus rink was discussed and the estimate which Mr. Melville had drafted read before the meeting. The estimated receipts from the sale of tickets are $400. Over against this the disbursements, including wages, lighting, coal, etc., amount to $437. This shows an estimated deficit of $37, which is considerably less than the excess expenditure of last year.

On the motion of Jimmie Lee, it was decided to grant tickets for the campus rink to eighteen of the hockey players. This, it was pointed out, had always been the custom.

It was further moved by Jimmie Lee that ten men of those who will play in the intercollegiate games get seats for the games with Queen's and Varsity.

The basketball club's request for new jerseys was granted, as it was pointed out that they had been able to cut down their estimate in another particular in order to make up for this expenditure.

The Wrestling Club was given permission to purchase fobs to be given as prizes at the coming Assault-at-Arms. The question of dues came up and it was decided that the matter should be left in the hands of the Wrestling Club.

The meeting was advised that Desbarats & Co. were desirous of taking on the advertising in the McGill Daily for next year. Messrs. Dixon and Beatty were appointed to enter into negotiations with the firm.

The secretary was authorized to pay bills from Notman & Sons and Mr. McCrimmon. These bills had to do with last year's Daily.

The Council decided that the price of admission to the Alma Mater Dance should be $4 from students, $5 from graduates, and $6 from outsiders.

that the full programme cannot be published yet, but it will appear in a later issue of the Daily. Mr. Dore's orchestra will play.

The dance will begin at 8 p.m. sharp. The reason for having it early is in order that fifteen dances and two extras can be got in. The tickets are now on sale. They can be had from any of the committee, and cost $1.75. The committee consists of Messrs. Hartin, Smith, Stalker, Gullison, Stevens, Pitts and Bone.

The following ladies have consented to act as chaperones: Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. Stansfield, Miss Hurlbutt and Miss Greterin.

This dance is not a private dance for members of Strathcona Hall only, but is open to any undergraduate. The tickets have been limited to 100.

RESULTS IN POLITICAL SCIENCE AND EDUCATION ARE POSTED

Two Third and Fourth Year Subjects in the Arts Faculty Give Unexpected Standing to Many.

The Third and Fourth Year Political Science results were posted yesterday. It was found also that some of the marks in the History of Education exams had been lost, and some of those who had according to a previous list failed, really obtained high marks. Notably of this class was Miss Currie, whose name failed to appear at all in the uncorrected list, but who came equal with the three other leaders in the class.

Latest results are as follows:

THIRD YEAR.

POLITICAL SCIENCE.

Class I—Miss Macoun, Bernstein, Wright, Reid, Hemming, equal; Levine, Abbott, Manning, equal.

Class II—Robertson, Ross (C. B.), Schiver, equal; Giles, Denny, Fraser, equal; Sargent, Drost, Oughtred, equal.

Class III—Quinn, Beatty, Burn, Norrthrup, equal; O'Halloran, Cohen, Miss Story, equal; Werry, Duclon, Cushing, equal; Lebel, Miss McArthur, O'Leary, equal; Leslie, Goldwater, Clark, equal; McMullen.

Other results were issued yesterday.

HISTORY OF EDUCATION.

Class I—Currie, Bodie, Cousins, Drost,

PENN. RIFLE MEET.

With the high showing of 921 out of a possible 1000, Pennsylvania's rifle team completed their part of the meet against Louisiana State University, Louisiana simultaneously shot at their range in the South and wired the result to Washington. Captain Dillie, the National Guard judge in charge of the Penn. end of the meet and score, has telegraphed for comparison with the Louisiana score. After the two scores have been examined the decision will be wired to both universities.

Ruzickiewicz made the best showing with a total of 191 out of a possible 200. Hazelhurst, Smith, Hillman, Parker and Roberts followed in order.

ROUND ABOUT THE COLLEGE

FOR WHICH EVERYBODY IS A REPORTER.

R. V. C. '15 will meet to-day at 1 p.m. in Room 12.

The McGill orchestra and band will have its picture taken Saturday at Notman's studio, Union avenue, at 1 o'clock. Dress suits and black ties are to be worn.

To-day's lecture at the C. O. T. C. has been postponed.

Professor F. E. Lloyd, of McGill University, traced the gradual formation of the immense desert areas of the east and their effect on the imagination and culture of the people of the land in the course of an address on climatic influences in eastern art before the members of the Christ Church Men's Guild on Wednesday night.

An extremely important meeting of R. V. C. 1914 will take place at 1 p.m. today in the Common Room. Several matters of general interest will come up for discussion, and the attendance of every member of the class is earnestly requested.

Dr. Hemmison and Dr. Leacock addressed a very important meeting of the Economics Club last evening. A full report will be published in the Daily of next Monday.

The agreeable change in atmospheric conditions yesterday resulted in a large turn-out at the campus rink last night. It is to be hoped that the weather will continue as pleasant.

FRESHMEN SCHEDULE OF PRINCETON SWIMMING

The schedule of the remaining meets of the Princeton Freshman swimming team has been completed recently, and is as follows: Jan. 17, Swarthmore Preparatory School at Swarthmore; Feb. 13, Central High School of Philadelphia at Princeton; Feb. 14, Lawrenceville at Lawrenceville; Feb. 21, Yale 1917 at New Haven; Mar. 6, Freshman relay championship at New York. In this meet Yale, Princeton, and Pennsylvania Freshmen will compete.

The Freshmen this year have some good material and the prospects are excellent for the remainder of the season. Capt. C. H. Burchenal can be relied on in the relay, fifty and one hundred yard dashes, and in practice has records of 26.1 for the fifty, and 50.3-5 for the hundred. Mathison does the fifty in 27, and both Laney and Norris have records of 2.24 for the furlong. Norris has done 66 feet in the plunge, while Simons has made 60. Moore and Ames both swim the fifty, the former having a practice record of 27.1, and the latter of 27.3. Madden has excellent possibilities, but needs training before he will round into true form. As substitutes, Kempshall and Richards will have the first call. The fancy diving will be done by Wise, who won in both the West Philadelphia High School and Princeton Prep. meets. Cooper and Bruch are also showing promise in this event.

The water polo team has had difficulty in securing games as in all the meets they will have but one game, that being with Yale Freshmen.

The schedule includes two meets at other colleges, with the relay races and the dual meet between Pennsylvania and Dartmouth at Franklin Field. The preliminary trials for the Intercollegiate meet, likewise the finals also, have been provided for on the schedule.

On Saturday, February 28, a meeting of the Intercollegiate delegates representing the competing colleges will be held in New York City to determine where the big meet shall take place. The last Intercollegiate meet held on Franklin Field was on May 30, 1911. Because of the central location of Philadelphia with regard to the other universities who enter teams the races may be brought here again next spring. The schedule follows:

Saturday, April 25 — Pennsylvania Relay races, at Philadelphia.

Saturday, May 9 — Dartmouth, at Philadelphia.

Saturday, May 16 — Cornell, at Ithaca.

Friday, May 29 — Intercollegiate preliminary trials. Place undecided.

Saturday, May 30 — Intercollegiate finals. Place undecided.

MANY WANTED AT R. V. C. UNDERGRAD MEETING ON MONDAY

Hockey Versus Basketball is the Issue.

There will be a meeting of the R.V.C. Undergraduate Society on Monday, January 19th, at 1 o'clock, in the Common Room. Every one is requested to regard this notice and to attend that meeting. It is a disgrace that students do not attend these meetings better and more willingly. So few were at the last meeting of this kind that some doubts were raised as to whether or not there was a quorum. Avoid all such disputes by turning out on Monday. The matters to be discussed are, or should be, of vital interest to each and every undergraduate.

At the last meeting it was decided to let hockey count a point towards the banner. Since that time there has been so much adverse opinion expressed against the scheme that it has been thought advisable to hold another meeting to see whether the students' wish to amend the motion that hockey shall count a point. This is the main business of Monday's meeting.

Think carefully before you come, and remember what it means to have hockey come thus into prominence just now. It means that girls will have their interests divided between that and basketball, and undermining the latter just when the league games are about to begin. Is this fair? Last spring the undergraduates decided unanimously that outside games were what was needed to revive basketball. Now, after the committee and managers have spent hours of labor arranging a league schedule, they find that instead of getting the support they merit, the general interest threatens to be half-hearted because basketball has a rival. R.V.C. undergraduates, think of this before you vote on Monday. Get an opinion of your own on the subject and stick to it.

ONE WHO IS INTERESTED IN BOTH HOCKEY AND BASKETBALL.

"Well, my son," said the major, endeavoring to be nice and polite and chummy to the newly joined subaltern, "I suppose it is the old, old story, don't you know—the fool of the family sent to join the army—what?" "Oh, no, sir," said the newly joined subaltern. "Things have quite altered since your day." And the major thereupon decided to revise his ideas as to cordiality.

READING COMPETITION WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

INTIMATIONS OF IMMORALITY.

For some reason or other, the supplement of the Queen's University Journal for November has just reached our desk. Better late than never.

We offer our heartiest congratulations to the Alma Mater Society of Queens on the initial number of the Supplement. It contains a judicious mixture of essays, short stories, poetry, convention reports, literary criticism and impressionistic sketches of high calibre, and we must decidedly take exception to the first half of the sentence we find on the introductory page, "An ill-favored thing, sir, but mine own."

A recent issue of the McGill Daily fittingly devotes its entire columns to a tribute to Dr. James Angell, President-Emeritus of the University of Michigan, on his eighty-fifth birthday. Our contemporaries from below the Mason-Dixon line are indeed setting a high literary standard. We have already extolled the virtues of the Daily Texan, and must now offer further praise to the University of Texas Magazine. The latter contains an abundance of well-chosen and widely varied readable matter. A one-act play, "Brown of '98," is especially interesting.

The Princeton Pictorial Review, published regularly for the first time this fall, has already proved its worth, and is now ranked among the leading college publications of the country. It has opened up a broad field for up-to-date illustrated news, for, coming out bi-weekly, its editors are able to give interesting photographic accounts of events very soon after they have happened. An example of the possibilities of this rapid recording is the recent Graduate School Number, in which photographs of the exercises were published two days after the actual occurrence.

A system of exchanging cuts of inter-collegiate news is also in operation with both Yale and Harvard. Thus all three Colleges are able to keep in touch with each other without sending special representatives. However,

BIBLE STUDY SUPPER AT STRATHCONA HALL TO-DAY

Organization Meeting for the Winter's Work. Mr. Bradford of Central Y. M. C. A. to Speak.

This evening at six o'clock those who have been engaged in Bible Study for the past term, and any others who are interested, will meet for supper at Strathcona Hall.

The speaker of the evening will be Mr. John Bradford, already well-known to all McGill men. Mr. Bradford is community secretary of the city Y. M. C. A., and since his coming to Montreal last July has allied himself with all sorts of social and religious work. There is practically no service organization doing work in Montreal—settlements, boys' clubs, juvenile court, Sunday Schools—with which he has not some connection.

To illustrate his remarks, practically nothing had ever been done in Montreal for the training of Sunday School workers. As soon as he came

Mr. Bradford saw the opportunity which was being missed. In three weeks he had over two hundred Sunday School teachers from fifty schools enrolled in a training class, meeting on Tuesday evenings at the Diocesan College, and led by Dr. Rexford, Dr. Smythe, and Dr. Martineau, three of the best men on the continent.

This is only one of the many things Mr. Bradford has successfully turned his hand to in Montreal. He has now a good many students at work teaching English to foreigners and leading boys' clubs, but he needs a great many more, and he hopes to enroll them at the meeting this evening.

The supper will start at six o'clock, and he will be in plenty of time for the different classes after the supper.

WHY THE DATES OF THE MOCK PARLIAMENT WERE SO ARRANGED

Other Undergraduate Societies Had Already Reserved the Union for Other Important Meetings.

A most important meeting of the executive of the Lit. took place in the Union on Wednesday evening. The meeting was called for the purpose of making arrangements for the Mock Parliament. After a good deal of discussion it was decided to hold the first two sessions on the twenty-second and twenty-eighth of January. Unfortunately it was not possible to arrange for other dates, practically every other night being taken. The Strathcona Hall residents have reserved the Union Hall for Friday, the twenty-third, and the Science men have a most important meeting on the evening of the twenty-first. The only day available that week was the twenty-second, and although the Historical Club has a meeting on that evening, it is to be hoped that they will see their way clear to make arrangements for another night.

The last three days of the last week in January having been reserved by different organizations (Law Dinner, Assault-at-Arms, Economic Club, R. V. C. Dance), the second meeting of the Parliament had to be put on Wednesday, the twenty-eighth, although this may seem to be rather close to the first session.

The question of the registration of voters was then gone into. To save trouble and expenditure it was decided to do away with the system of cards as used last year. The whips of the different classes are asked to make a list of the voters of their party in each class, and to forward these lists to the Clerk of the House, Mr. Clifford Oughtred, 196 Milton, before Tuesday evening, the twentieth. Each voter should attach his signature to his name and address, and no one will be allowed to vote who has not complied with these regulations.

The executive feel confident that this year's session will be the best yet held. Both parties seem keen on getting or remaining in power, and first-class meetings should result.

WRESTLING AT PRINCETON.

Practice at Princeton will be held every day and it is imperative that the men should report at once. At the end of the month the first trials will be held and men in each weight will be chosen for the first meet, which will take place early in February. Coach Peterson will devote special attention to these men, giving each man individual instruction.

Practice for the other men will continue uninterrupted and these men will be put into condition for the second notice meet, which takes place about February 15. Proficiency in this sport can only be gained by consistent practice, and more men are urged to avail themselves of this opportunity for training.

While all London is agog with interest over the sale of Covent Garden, it may be worth recalling that this famous quarter of the metropolis is rich in a literary as well as in a material sense. An extraordinary number of literary associations cluster round the whole neighborhood. Passing over the memory of Dryden and Addison, and coming to comparatively recent times, we find Lamb settled in Russell court, Covent Garden, in 1817. In a letter to Haydon he gives his new address, with humorous particularity as "20, Russell court, Covent Garden, East. Halfway up, next the corner, left-hand side." To him, as he said, Covent Garden was dearer than any garden of Alcibiades.

THINGS THEATRICAL

MARTIN HARVEY IN "THE ONLY WAY."

It is a favorite device of the novelist who has chosen the fascinating world of the stage as the setting for a story to relate how the hero or heroine, as the case may be, spring to fame and fortune behind the footlights in a single night. Those who know something of the patience and hard work which alone lead to theatrical eminence shake their heads sceptically when they read the rosy tale. In one sense, however, Martin Harvey, who is touring Canada under the auspices of the British Canadian Theatre Organization Company, Limited, and who will be seen at His Majesty's all next week, is a living example of real life can emulate romance. It is nothing more than the truth that the reception accorded to his first performance of "The Only Way" at the Lyceum, a theatre still glorious with the illustrious regime of Sir Henry Irving, established Martin Harvey at one bound among the foremost figures of the contemporary stage. But Martin Harvey would not have held this great position as he has unless he had also tasted the vicissitudes and labors of apprenticeship. He had served a number of years under the aegis of Irving, starting at the bottom rung of the ladder, and after leaving "the chief" he had gained still more experience under other managements, including that of Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson. But as a manager in his own capacity success arrived at the very first venture. This great landmark in the actor's career dates back to the year 1890, when he had been in the theatre for more than a dozen years, and in the meantime Martin Harvey had added the reputation of being one of the greatest exponents of classical tragedy to the fame he first acquired as a new star in the firmament of romantic drama. "Hamlet," "Richard III," "Oedipus Rex" and "Pelléas" have successively been added to the list of great tragic roles in the actor's repertory, but still on every visit to the great cities of the British Isles in the course of his annual tour, and in al-

"CAPPING" WAS BOYCOTTED.

The graduation ceremony at Glasgow University recently was the strangest in the long record of the university. To mark their disapproval of the sentence meted out by the Senate to one of the undergraduate for disorderly conduct at a previous function the students decided to boycott the ceremony. Pickets were posted at all the cloisters to ensure that no student other than the graduates would attend. About 149 graduates were "capped," and not a single student was present, the hall being merely occupied by friends of those interested. Prof. Ferguson, owing to the illness of the principal, Sir Donald MacAlister, officiated. The students captured a photographer who had secured a snapshot and made him deliver up his plate, but were not so successful with a reporter whose notes they desired to censor. The graduation was carried through in almost perfect silence.

MCGILL MEETS QUEENS TO-NIGHT

Red and White Supporters Confident of Victory, Dobson and Rappel of Queens Speedy but Will Be Closely Watched.

MCGILL'S GOOD DEFENCE AND TEAM WORK, LIKELY TO WIN

Hughes and Rankin Solid Defence—Parsons and Hooper Expected to Show up Well—Hard Practices of Past Fortnight Have Kept The Boys in Best of Condition—Last Practice Characterized by Smooth Combination, Checking Back, and Passing.

Tonight sees the staging of the initial fixture in the Intercollegiate League, when the Red and White septette lines up against the Tricolor at the Arena.

While there have been fewer press comments than usual on the prospects of the game, those on the inside state that it will be one of the most keenly contested combats that has been witnessed in intercollegiate hockey since the memorable defeat of Varsity, here, two years ago.

The ex-Presbyterian university is represented by a very fast and experienced septette, but the management of the Red and White is confident that on the showing that has been made in the last few practices the big Red team will be able to carry off the palm of victory, let the Queens men be as speedy as they may. There is, moreover, an atmosphere of optimism and determination among the men, both on the ice and in the dressing room, that bodes well for McGill's success. This does not mean that there is any overconfidence or any danger of a repetition of last season's disaster. The men realize that they have a tough proposition to handle and they will take no chances. They have, however, been practicing as frequently and as strenuously as time and opportunity would permit, and an aggregation of men that at the beginning of the season looked none too hopeful has developed into a well-knit, smoothly working organization.

TO PLAY TO-NIGHT.

The following are requested to be at the Arena at 7.30 this evening, in uniform:

Mann, Montgomery, Hughes, Rankin, Davidson, Parsons, De Muth, Hooper, Wickson, Gilmore, Kendall.

FRED DAVIES.

The football victories that fell to McGill's glory this past season have not won through the spectacular work of individual men, but through the organized work of Shaughnessy's machine. If McGill is to carry off the hockey trophy this season it will be by adopting the same tactics.

The defence of the McGill territory is identical with that which proved almost invincible two years ago. The lineup will probably find four new men on the forward, but they are all men of experience elsewhere, and in practice have shown themselves fit to travel with the best of them.

In the nets will be found either Mann or Montgomery. Both have played consistently excellent games for McGill during the past two years, and either may be counted on to stop most that come his way.

Bill Hughes and Rankin will hold down the point and cover. They are both in the best of condition and have been practicing in practice, a checking and rushing game that if duplicated tonight will keep the Queens defence hustling. Both, apart from their defensive work, will probably figure in the scoring list.

In centre ice, Davidson, who played two years ago with McGill, and who last year starred on the New Edinburgh, will again bear the college colors. He has lots of speed and may be well trusted to look after Box, the Queens centre. The latter is a light man, but very fast, and Davidson's ability to skate and stand the pace will stand him in good stead.

Eric Parsons, who is undoubtedly the fastest man on the McGill line, will play as rover. Parsons has been playing a consistently heady and clever game this season and is expected to do much to offset the speed of Dobson, the Queens right wing.

Dobson will find, moreover, a heavy check and a hard man to elude in De Muth, who will probably play left wing for McGill. De Muth is as weighty as the Queens man, and a good forward for work and checks back closely. The encounter between them should be replete with interest.

On the right wing, Hooper will line up for McGill against Rappel of Queens. Hooper has had any amount of experience in the home of hockey, the capital. He is a clever stick handler, a speedy skater and has a dangerous shot.

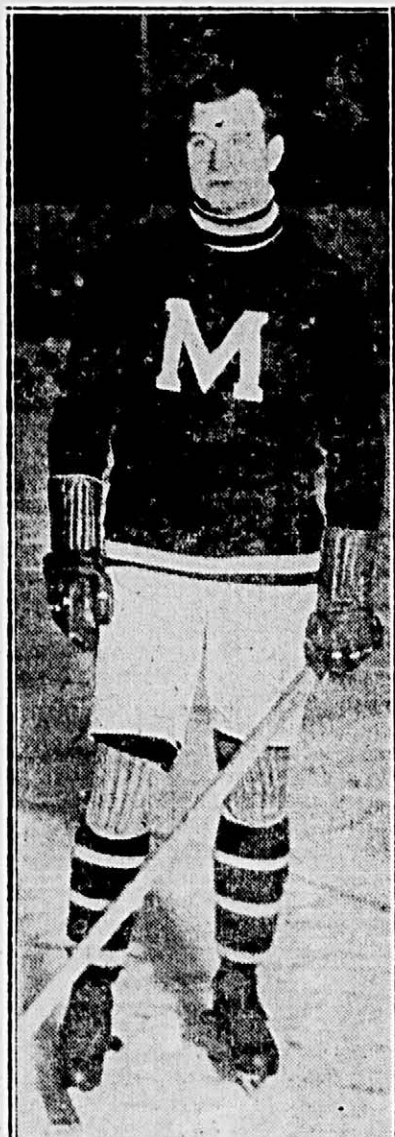

Little can be judged as to the relative strengths of the teams before the game shows the players in action. Queens has played four games abroad, two of which were victories, and two defeats. McGill has played no game as yet, but are in fit condition and are confident.

The lineup at the Arena will be:

MCGILL: Goal, Mann or Montgomery; R. Smith, Hughes, Rankin, Davidson, Parsons, De Muth, Hooper, Wickson, Gilmore, Kendall.

QUEENS: Goal, Mann or Montgomery; R. Smith, Hughes, Rankin, Davidson, Parsons, De Muth, Hooper, Wickson, Gilmore, Kendall.

LAST PRACTICE BEFORE GAME

McGill's Quintette Fast.

BASKETBALL

The Red and White Expected to Stand Good Chance With Queen's.

The McGill five had their last practice last night before the struggle with Queens on Saturday. All the players were out and are in the best of shape. With the exception of a few minor injuries the team will go on the floor ready to go top speed until the last whistle blows.

The practice last night was very encouraging. The fast five lined up and gave the signals with precision. He should be able on Saturday to start things right off to Kennedy and McTavish every time. Both the forwards are shooting well, and should run up a good score. Baldwin can be counted upon to get the ball away from the defence end and Willisroff and Conover run it down the floor well.

The Y. M. C. A. floor is the size for a basketball game and the spectators can count on an spectacular match. A win will start the season right and give the team confidence to wrest the Intercollegiate honors from Varsity this year. The big game with start at 4 o'clock sharp and previous to this the preliminary match will be run off. No seats are reserved. Tickets for both games can be had at the door, or from members of the executive for 25c.

As yet no referee has been appointed. Secretary McTavish has had no word from Queens yet signifying their choice of the list of competent men submitted to them.

All up to start the team off well, and help them bring another championship to McGill! 4 o'clock Saturday, in the Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium. The line-up of the team will be: Kennedy and McTavish, forwards; Smith, centre; Baldwin, Willisroff and Conover, forwards; Willisroff and Conover each playing a half.

KINGSTON PAPERS ON MCGILL GAME

QUEEN'S CHANCES ARE UNCERTAIN.

To say what chance Queens senior hockey squad will have against McGill in the opening game of the Intercollegiate hockey union in Montreal, is almost an impossibility. The team has been holding some practices at the covered rink since its return from the trip to the American side during the Christmas vacation. It is altogether likely that the following will be the line-up:

Goal, Ray Smith; defence, Wallie Smith and McKinnon; rover, Len

DR. EVE HAS BEEN ELECTED PRESIDENT

Of Figure Skating and Waltzing Club.

A meeting of the Figure Skating Club was held last night in the Royal Victoria College. Dr. Eve, after calling the meeting to order, proposed that officers for the year should be elected.

The first nomination was for president, and Dr. Eve was unanimously re-elected. Dr. Eve stated that hitherto Miss Lichtenstein had very kindly acted as patroness of the club, and he proposed that she should be continued in that position. The accounts of the club on account of the absence of Mr. Lamb, last year's secretary, were not given, though a small balance to the good was assured. Mr. Lamb, owing to press of business regretted that he would be unable to undertake to be secretary this year, so Mr. Cambridge was elected as such. Dr. Eve then asked for proposals for the committee, and Mr. Harvey was elected, but the meeting reserved the right to elect two more at a later date.

Miss Cartwright, Miss Longworth, Miss Ellison, and Mrs. Burns were elected to the Ladies' Committee. The officers being elected, Dr. Eve proposed that providing the rink could be obtained for next Thursday evening, the club should hold its first session at 8 o'clock on that day. It has since been ascertained that the rink can be obtained on that day through the session. On account of the expense, it was decided that the club could not afford a professional instructor. The club then adjourned, all business being completed.

WRESTLERS MAKING STRONG SHOWING

Two New Men Out—Audette Injured.

Over twenty men turned out for the practice of the Wrestling Club yesterday afternoon, and were put through a strenuous workout.

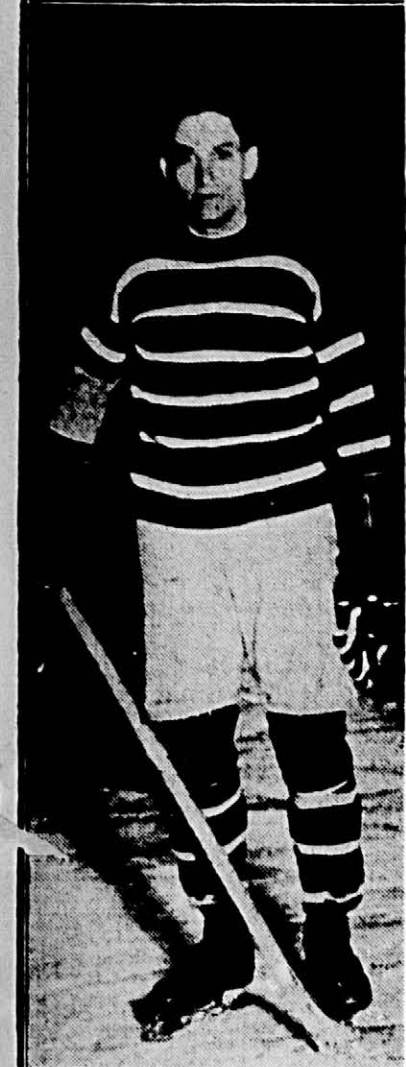

There were one or two minor accidents, the most serious being a straining of the neck and shoulder by Audette. It is probable that the fiery 125-pounder will be absent from the next few practices.

There were two new men out who both made an excellent showing. In the 115-pound weight a find has been made in the person of Donald. He has considerable experience and a natural aptitude for the game.

Patterson, the heavyweight, was out and put up a splendid fight against MacPhail, a lighter but more experienced man.

THE MCGILL SKI CLUB

Programme for the Winter.

DARTMOUTH

American College Team to Be Met in Jumping Competition Cross-Country Race on Saturday.

A meeting of the newly inaugurated McGill branch of the Montreal Ski Club was held yesterday afternoon in the Strathcona Hall. It was there announced by the president, Norm Williamson, that arrangements had been made for distinctive badges for the McGill branch. These are to be somewhat similar to those of the Montreal Ski Club, but are to have a band of red and the word "McGill" on them.

Also it was announced that a jumping competition would probably be arranged for with the Dartmouth team, to be held on February 21st, if a sufficiently strong team can be procured to represent the Red and White. In order that as much practice as possible may be had before the 21st, all members are urged to take advantage of the green jumping competitions of the Montreal Ski Club. These are on the schedule below. That evening the teams will all take the train out to Shawbridge, and on the morning of the 22nd the McGill and Dartmouth teams will hold a relay race. That afternoon the Montreal S. C. will hold their championship cross-country run.

That some idea of the possibilities of the men may be formed, all members should take part in the six-mile cross-country run this Saturday. No matter what the weather may be, Mr. Paul states that the race will start at 2.30 p.m. sharp on Saturday from Lunkin's Hotel, and the course will be as follows: Lunkin's to ski club jumps, up hill to Park slide, to Lookout, over top of the mountain past McGill's meteorological tower, down winding path, over Fletcher's Field, around both Protestant and Catholic cemeteries and back to Lunkin's.

The runners will be divided into two classes, as follows:

A—Expert runners who have already won prizes in the local club events.

B—Runners of less experience and non-prize winners.

Three handsome prizes will be donated in each class. The officers of the club will act as the officials of the race, and their decisions will be made according to the elapsed time of each runner, the men being started at one minute intervals, and the times being carefully recorded.

All that is necessary is that all would-be entries should give in their names to Norm Williamson before 2.30 Saturday at Lunkin's, and he will see to their entering. Anyone is free to take part who wishes to become a member of the McGill branch, which is contingent on the payment of $2.00. He then becomes a member also of the Montreal Ski Club, with full privileges to take advantage of their competitions.

The programme for the season 1914 is published below:

MEN AT PENN. OUT FOR WINTER FOOTBALL

Twelve men reported for the first winter football practice held on Franklin Field, Pennsylvania. The men are as follows: Merrill, Bolger, Jones, Dorizas, Bore, Veseland, Frehofer, Journeay, Marshall, Irwin, Pepper and Withers.

Little work was done yesterday. Coach Brooke spent most of the time in coaching Dorizas. He says that he expects to develop the big Greek for next fall, and will, if necessary, come out here every day in the week to coach him.

Michael Dorizas, Pennsylvania's strong man, and credited by many to be the strongest man in any American university, reported for winter football practice, and announced that he hoped to be at Pennsylvania for another year at least, during which time he will play football. As he is such excellent green material, Coach Brooke is anxious to get the big Greek whipped into shape, and is trying to develop speed and aggressiveness and offensive work. Dorizas, with his brawn, if he can learn to use it to advantage, is expected to make a tower of strength for the Red and Blue line.

Coach Brooke announced that outdoor practice will be held as long as the weather permits. The work for the most part will consist of drill in the fundamental principles of the game, and the tackling dummy and line-bucking machine will probably be used in practice.

Marshall had charge of drilling the candidates in getting away quickly after receiving the ball. At present 50 yards is the distance that is being run before the daylight afternoon workouts. Ten men reported yesterday and practiced under the direction of Coach Brooke and last fall's veterans.

DR. TAIT MACKENZIE

During the Christmas holidays there was exhibited at the Montreal Art Gallery a collection of over sixty pieces of sculpture, the work of an old McGill man, Dr. R. Tait McKenzie, and although the exhibition is now closed an arrangement has been made to transfer a few of the finest pieces to the McGill Library, where they may be seen for the next few days.

Dr. McKenzie, an old McGill athlete, held the intercollegiate record in his day, and is remembered particularly for a celebrated high jump victory at Toronto. After graduation he became a member of the Medical Staff and the Director of the Gymnasium, and for many years he was the leader of university activities in all matters connected with athletics. In 1904 after eleven or twelve years at McGill he was appointed Professor and Director of the Department of Physical Training at the University of Pennsylvania, which position he still holds, and he can truly be said today to be the foremost man in North America in all matters connected with University Athletics. He is also a member of the American Olympic committee.

Dr. McKenzie is not, however, merely an athlete, a teacher and a gymnasium administrator. He is also an artist, and his achievements as a sculptor have already won him worldwide fame. His portraits in relief are ranked very high wherever they are known, but the work in which he is pre-eminent is the representation of the college athlete—strong, vigorous, clean men, combining perfect physical form with character, knowledge and refinement.

THE GAME

A conservative estimate of the hockey club's expenses shows a probable deficit of over seven hundred dollars. We also notice in the estimate published elsewhere in our columns that the anticipated gate receipts for both games are in the neighborhood of six hundred dollars.

It is certain that the team needs all the support that we can give it, both financially and otherwise. Your presence at the game tonight will be beneficial in more ways than one.

It will signify, in the first place, that you are desirous that McGill should win this game. Should you be there, we know that your desire will find utterance, whether it is realized or not. But your presence will mean still more—it will mean that the monetary contribution that you make in order to witness the game will go to swell the coffers of the hockey club.

The best that an organization has in it cannot be forthcoming if it feels itself constantly in the clutches of adversity and handicapped by a policy of essentially rigid economy.

McGill is out to win that game to-night and to do that you must be there to back up the team. Queen's will be well represented but "What's the matter with old McGill" ought to put their Gaelic yell into the shade.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The attention of our readers is called to the fact that the reports of the Students' Council meetings which appeared last Friday and which are also forthcoming this morning are taken by a staff reporter, who is being admitted, at the invitation of the Council, to its deliberations.

Judging from the number who have attended the organization meetings of both the Liberal and Conservative parties, interest in the Mock Parliament is increasing from year to year.

The situation promises to be intensely interesting this year, since the men who occupy the chief positions in the ranks of both parties have already succeeded in earning reputations for themselves as speakers and organizers of no mean ability.

London To Have Theatre For Dramatic Art Student

London—Lady Bancroft laid the foundation stone recently of a new theatre which is being built in Malet street, London, by the Academy of Dramatic Art for the use of its students. Since its foundation 10 years ago by Sir Herbert Tree, the academy has been accommodated in two houses, 62 and 64 Gower street, behind which the present theatre is being erected. Sir Squire Bancroft contributed £1000 toward the cost of the new theatre and other members of the council of the academy also gave largely. The Duke of Bedford granted a lease of the site, which is near the position secured for the proposed national Shakespeare memorial, on very favorable terms, and contributed to the building fund. Among those present at the laying of the foundation stone were the president of the academy, Sir Squire Bancroft, Bernard Shaw, Dion Boucicault, Miss Winifred Emery, Ben Webster, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Eadie, Sir Arthur Pinero, Sir George and Lady Alexander, and many other prominent in the dramatic profession. In the course of her speech Lady Bancroft said that every step on the way to fame and fortune was hard to climb. There was, however, room for every one in the artistic world. If one had real talent it was quickly recognized and nothing could hold one back. They had already reason to be proud of many young actors and actresses, former pupils of the academy, who were now holding important positions on the professional stage. A little theatre of their own would help them to realize better the atmosphere of their art and she regarded a real stage as a necessity. One could not dissociate art from its proper surroundings.

Energetic Worker For Good When Bishops Did Not Work

Samuel Wilberforce Discussed Before the Historical Club by F. C. Fowler.

Samuel Wilberforce was born in the year 1805, and was the third son of William Wilberforce, the great philanthropist. He received his early education privately from Rev. George Hodson, of Malsomere, Gloucestershire; matriculated at Oxford 1823; graduated in 1826; received his M.A. degree three years later; ordained in the same year; D.D. conferred on him in 1845; and was made an honorary fellow of All Souls in 1871. Died July 11, 1873.

From the time that he was sent to school at Malsomere he had been intended for the church. With this end in view as his life's work, his father had given him a thorough training both intellectual and moral. He had magnified to his son the importance of the work that he was to take up, these ideas instilled into his mind regarding the superiority of the church over other professions left a great impression; for it is clearly seen all through his career that above everything else, he placed the church, and through his influence many of his colleagues and subordinates were led to have a higher conception of their calling than they ever had before.

Two years after his graduation from Oxford he was appointed curate in charge of Checkendon, in Oxfordshire. This position he held for six months, and through the influence of Bishop Sumner, who was a great friend of the Wilberforces, he was given the living of Brixton, Isle of Wight. He remained in this charge ten years during which time he became immensely popular as a preacher, his services were in great demand all over the diocese. It was during this incumbency that he became interested in the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. On behalf of this society he travelled all through the neighboring counties and gave it an impetus that it had not received either before or since. This was largely due to his wonderful power of speaking. This faculty had been partly inherited and partly developed. As natural gifts he possessed an easy manner and a rich clear voice, in addition to this he had the great advantage of a careful early training from his father, who adopted the plan which Lord Chatham and his father had adopted in the training of their distinguished sons, of habitually making them reproduce off-hand the substance of a speech or sermon to which they had listened. This training which he had received was really the foundation of his success in life. If Bishop Wilberforce had not been an orator, it is scarcely possible that he could ever have risen above the status of an ordinary clergyman. But there are several instances by which it is seen that his oratorical powers brought him into great prominence. When Lord Palmerston was addressing a meeting which was presided over by the Duke of Wellington, Palmerston began his speech by upsetting the New Testament and overturning the foundations of the Christian religion. This called forth the invectives of young Wilberforce, who attacked Palmerston so fiercely that some one asked Wellington why he did not interfere. The Duke replied that he had thought of doing so, but he felt that if he did, he would only divert the stream of invective on himself, and he said, "I would rather face a battery than that young fellow. Another instance when his powers of oratory brought him into great prominence and really determined his success in life, was when he moved a resolution at a great anti-slavery meeting held in Exeter Hall, at which the Prince Consort was in attendance. The speeches that were made previous to his were so dull and uninteresting that when Wilberforce came along with his fiery speech, he at once leaped into the favor of the Prince, and was shortly afterwards made Lord Chamberlain.

This appointment was the turning point of his life. Although he did not retain the court favor for any great length of time, yet so great was his popularity that very shortly after, through the wish of the Queen, he was appointed Dean of Westminster, and shortly afterwards was recommended by Peel to fill the vacant see of Oxford. His diary, which his son has published, shows that when he at first was regarded by the court. How the Queen and Prince Consort congratulated him for his sermons; the Duke and Duchess of Kent wishing to be introduced to him, costly presents given to him at Christmas time by the Queen. It seems, by reading his diary, that the court went out of their way to please Archdeacon Wilberforce. There is, however, another account of which he has recorded which shows that on November 30th, 1849, court favor was withdrawn. This was due to the suspicion which the Prince Consort had of the Bishop's insincerity and disinterestedness. It was very hard time for Wilberforce to lose his influence at court. With Royalty on his side he would ultimately have triumphed over the opposition of Lord Palmerston, who had acquired a bitter hatred of him on account of the political meeting at which Wilberforce severely chastised him, and would have been appointed Archbishop of Canterbury. Gladstone and many more of the leading politicians claimed that Wilberforce was by far the most capable man to be prime, but the opposition both of Palmerston and the court prevented him rising to the supreme head of the English Church. But although this episode in his life was a superlative obstacle to his desired goal, the court, however, had done a great service not only to Wilberforce himself, but also to the whole Church of England by favoring his appointment to the Bishopric of Oxford.

It was while Bishop of Oxford that both his strength and his weaknesses are revealed. On his appointment he found himself face to face with a tremendous task. The bishopric at that time seemed to have lost sight of their great responsibilities. Many of them had considered that a bishopric was the reward for a few of the faithful, and once they had received the appointment they gave themselves up to a life of glorious inactivity. In those days a working bishop was an ecclesiastical phenomenon. Most of them were well paid and lived in great style, whenever they went to London they were met by a form from their powdered footman and six-horse carriages. The provisors of Wilberforce had been no exception to the general rule. The work of the diocese had been sadly neglected, and it needed herculean strength to reorganize it. Wilberforce proved equal to the task. The following is a brief extract from the Guardian, which shows that Wilberforce had a higher conception of his responsibilities than the average bishop of his day. "For the first time, it is believed, for centuries, an English bishop has been seen giving to the earnest parochial clergy of his diocese active personal assistance in raising the lukewarm, or reclaiming the erring children of his church, and for this purpose bringing to bear on a particular point, the full weight of his divine organization. For a long period the bishops of the English Church have been too much regarded as Episcopal or overlookers of the clergy alone, or according to the idea of one of our leading statesmen, as merely ordaining, confirming, church-consecrating functionaries." In addition to the disorganized state of his see, he found himself facing another great problem. Shortly after his appointment, Newman had left the English Church for the Roman, and his place as head of the Tractarian party had been taken by Dr. Pusey. It required great skill to deal with such a man, but Wilberforce proved himself equal to the occasion. His correspondence with Pusey shows that he used great tact and was thus successful where other men might have utterly failed. Towards the end of his term at Oxford Pusey admitted that he had received great help from the bishop. In spite, however, of the obstacles against which he had to contend, he re-organized the diocese of Oxford, hundreds of churches were built and repaired, clergymen were inspired, and his colleagues, the bishops of other counties, were beginning to have different ideas regarding their work. He was truly the originator of a new era in the English Church.

The weakness of Wilberforce is seen in his connection with the Hampden controversy. Hampden was appointed Bampton lecturer for 1832, and chose for his subject "The Scholastic Philosophy Considered in its Relation to Christian Theology." The main principle of these lectures was that scholastic philosophy was the parent of our theological language, which is false, both in its principle and in its method, and forming an atmosphere of mist between us and primitive truth; and he also made the then startling proposition that "strictly speaking, in the Scriptures itself there are no doctrines." The lectures which he delivered would not have been noticed, but Hampden became professor of Moral Philosophy at Oxford and published another pamphlet entitled "Observations on Religious Descent, with Particular Reference to the Use of Religious Tests in the University." This pamphlet was a distinct proposal to abolish subscription to the Thirty-nine articles. It brought down upon him a storm of disapproval. He was answered by an article written by Henry Wilberforce, "Foundations of the Faith Assailed at Oxford." At a Convocation, Hampden was excluded from Oxford chiefly through the influence of Wilberforce. Then in 1847 Lord Russell recommended Hampden to the vacant bishopric of Hereford. It is stated by several that he made a serious political blunder by this act. A number of bishops called on him to point out the mistake he was making, but he would not withdraw his recommendation.

At this point Wilberforce interfered and wrote privately to Russell urging that Hampden should be required to disprove before a competent tribunal, the truth of the charges of unsoundness in doctrine. Russell would not agree to it at all. Then the charge of heresy was laid against Hampden by Wilberforce and others. Shortly afterwards when he found that these charges were going to amount to nothing, he wrote to Hampden suggesting the withdrawal of the Bampton lectures and Observations on Dissent. He replied that he would not degrade himself by adopting such a course; but he stated that the pamphlets were being circulated contrary to his wish. Wilberforce was now beginning to realize the mistake he had been making by trying to weaken the influence of Hampden by adopting the degrading course that was suggested, and when he received Hampden's reply that the circulars had been circulated against his will, he weakly interpreted this that Hampden had withdrawn his lectures, and on further examination Wilberforce decided that he found no heresy at all in them, and he thought that it had been a trick of Newman's. This affair greatly weakened the popularity of Wilberforce both at the court and in Parliamentary circles. It also made him a bitter enemy of Lord Russell's. In his diary he often mentions Russell's name, but never without a feeling of great contempt.

In parliamentary affairs Wilberforce confined himself chiefly to the questions relating to the church. The extension of the colonial Episcopate of the English Church was largely due to his efforts. He revived the Convocation after it had been silent for 135 years. Gladstone had found great fault with the bishops in their representation in Parliament, and in the big incomes they received. This deeply moved Wilberforce, and he accordingly determined with a renewed effort to obtain a real and complete union as a Synodical body. Although he had great opposition not only on the part of the laymen, but also on the part of the clergy, yet he triumphed over them. He also opposed the Disestablishment Bill of the Church of England. But although he confined himself largely to ecclesiastical affairs in the House of Lords, yet there were many other subjects in which he took a great interest. He was a great champion of the law of Chancery, the Prevention of Cruelty to Women and Children; Treatment of Prisoners; and National Education. Cobden said of him, "If he had not been a priest, he would have been a prime minister." He greatly favored Gladstone, although he would not vote with the Government who made Low Church bishops and deans. On the death of the Archbishop of Canterbury Gladstone all his best to secure Wilberforce as the new Primate, but as he had to deal with Palmerston on this question who had not forgotten the censure he received from the bishop when he was at the Isle of Wight, he vigorously opposed and prevented the appointment of Wilberforce now felt that he was a shelled man. His letters and diaries show that he was very much depressed and disappointed at this turn of events. But on his appointment to the Bishopric of Winchester, which came shortly afterwards, his energy and zeal were once more revived.

He has been severely criticized for opposing the Disestablishment of the Irish Church as a means of securing the free of Winchester. But he answered his accusers by pointing out that by this new position, he undertook (1) harder work; (2) a smaller income; (3) greater expenses; (4) the sacrifice of the love and affection of twenty-four years' growth. He found almost as great a task confronting him now as he did when he was appointed Bishop of Oxford. He set himself to reorganize the diocese and succeeded. While at this place, he was really the head of the English Church. The majority of the people regarded him as the greatest authority on Church matters. All through his life he had been a prodigious worker. Every moment of his time seemed to have been put to good use. Most of his correspondence was written while travelling from one place to another. On one occasion he was ascending Snowdon when the thick mist stopped their journey; Wilberforce at once took out his note book and wrote a preface to a book that he had been writing. His great faculty for work, however, did not divorce his interest in the world; and he always gladly everybody and in everything. His response to these appeals. He was advice on church and other matters (one of the greatest men the English Church has ever had, and really was sought not only by his own ministers, but by men from all parts of the originator of a new era.
